Social Sleuths

Learn about your digital footprint, by doing some detective work on social media. How much can you learn about people online just from looking at what they and their friends share?

Fact or Fiction

How do you know what information you can trust online? We'll explore information sources through a fun activity and learn what we can trust and how to filter out untrustworthy information.

This workshop is offered at no cost with the generous support of the Institute for Museum and Library Services
